To tamper with a witness in regard to the evidence to be given before either House or any committee of either House or to endeavour, directly or indirectly, to deter or hinder any person from appearing or giving evidence is a breach of privilege.

Corruption or intimidation, though a usual, is not an essential ingredient in this offence. It is equally a breach of privilege to attempt by persuasion or solicitations of any kind to induce a witness not to attend, or to withhold evidence or to give false evidence.

Mr. Speaker:—How is it a committee of the House? Is it the House that is insulted or the Committee?

Sri M. Bapayya Chowdary:—Both the House and the Committee.

Mr. Speaker:—The Committee must be your committee. If not, and if the Committee is insulted, it is a different thing. It is for the Committee to safeguard its privileges. You must convince me that this Committee is a Committee of this House. If not, how is the privilege of the House preserved?
Mr. Speaker:—The House cannot consider that report and give a finding on it. It is a report submitted to the Government and Government may or may not look into the matter. If it is a question of the impropriety of the statement made, I would agree with the hon. Member. But if it is a question of privilege I do not see how it is a privilege. First there must be a privilege and then you have to prove how it is violated.

Mr. Speaker:—Unless I admit the motion, I cannot allow a general discussion as if the motion is before the House. I was having some doubt on the point. I felt it came very near the mark. The question is whether there is a privilege or not. It may come very near the mark, but it must hit the mark. Therefore I heard both the hon. Members and I cannot allow any other hon. Motion re: Assignment of waste lands to the landless poor

25th February 1954

Sri Vavilala Gopalakrishnaiah:

The assignment of waste lands to the landless poor is a matter of great concern. The lands are often occupied by forest banjars, who are traditionally forest dwellers. These forests are considered sacred and the woodcutters are respected. The forests are not only important for their timber resources, but also for their biodiversity and the livelihood of the forest dwellers. The banjars have a long history of living in these forests and are deeply rooted in the tradition of forest management. They have their own system of forest management and are well-versed in the art of forest conservation. Therefore, it is important to consider their rights and interests while assigning the lands to the landless poor.

The forest policy should be designed in a way that it balances the need for land use with the rights of the forest dwellers. The banjars should be allowed to continue their traditional way of life and should be given the right to use the resources of the forest. This will help in the conservation of the forests and the livelihood of the forest dwellers.

In conclusion, the assignment of waste lands should be done in a manner that respects the rights of the forest dwellers and their traditional way of life. The forest policy should be designed to balance the need for land use with the rights of the forest dwellers.

Assignment of waste lands to the landless poor is a pressing need. The present situation is one of extreme poverty and destitution among the landless poor. The government has taken up the task of assigning waste lands to the landless poor. However, there are certain difficulties in the implementation of the scheme. The surveyors appointed for the purpose have faced many challenges and difficulties. The government should take steps to overcome these difficulties and ensure the smooth implementation of the scheme.

The unassessed waste lands should be converted into assessed lands. This will help in the overall development of the area. The government should take steps to ensure that the landless poor are provided with the necessary facilities to make a living.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the surveyors appointed for the purpose are adequately trained and equipped to carry out their duties. The government should also provide them with the necessary support and assistance to carry out their work effectively.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the lands assigned to the landless poor are not sold or mortgaged to the wealthy. This will ensure that the landless poor are able to make a living from the lands assigned to them.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the lands assigned to the landless poor are not taken away by the government for other purposes. This will ensure that the landless poor are able to make a living from the lands assigned to them.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the lands assigned to the landless poor are not subjected to any form of taxation or burden. This will ensure that the landless poor are able to make a living from the lands assigned to them.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the lands assigned to the landless poor are not subjected to any form of prohibition or restriction. This will ensure that the landless poor are able to make a living from the lands assigned to them.

The government should also take steps to ensure that the lands assigned to the landless poor are not subjected to any form of interference or interference. This will ensure that the landless poor are able to make a living from the lands assigned to them.

detailed discussion in the context of the resolution passed by the government on the subject of waste lands. It has been observed that the provision of loans, manures, etc., has not been utilized to the fullest extent by the landless poor. Therefore, it is suggested that a special arrangement be made to ensure that these facilities are made available to the landless poor.

It is also pointed out that the government should take steps to ensure that the landless poor are given adequate training and education to help them become self-sufficient.

In conclusion, it is hoped that the government will take swift action to implement the recommendations made in this resolution.
