Consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes. Consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes is a common practice in many countries to simplify the tax system and make it more equitable. It involves the consolidation of various taxes and duties into a single tax, which is generally based on the assessed value of the property.

Consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes is particularly important in the case of agricultural land, as it is the primary source of income for many farmers. The consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes can help to reduce administrative costs, simplify the tax system, and make it more transparent.

Consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes can also help to ensure that the tax burden is shared fairly among all taxpayers. It can help to prevent the over-collection of taxes, which can lead to hardship for taxpayers, and it can help to ensure that the tax system is fair and equitable.

Consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes is a complex process, and it requires careful planning and coordination. It is important to ensure that the consolidation process is fair and equitable, and that it is implemented in a way that maximizes the benefits for all taxpayers.

In conclusion, consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes is a critical aspect of tax policy, and it is important to ensure that it is implemented in a way that is fair and equitable. The consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes can help to reduce administrative costs, simplify the tax system, and make it more transparent, and it can also help to ensure that the tax burden is shared fairly among all taxpayers.

Agricultural Income Tax is a common tax imposed on agricultural income. It is generally levied on the income from agriculture, and it is an important source of revenue for many governments.

Agricultural Income Tax is particularly important in countries where agriculture is a major contributor to the economy. It is also important in countries where the majority of the population depends on agriculture for their livelihood.

In general, Agricultural Income Tax is levied on the income from agriculture, and it is often based on the value of the produce or the land used for agriculture. The rate of Agricultural Income Tax can vary depending on the country and the specific tax laws of that country.

In conclusion, Agricultural Income Tax is a critical aspect of tax policy, and it is important to ensure that it is implemented in a way that is fair and equitable. The rate and structure of Agricultural Income Tax can have a significant impact on the agricultural sector, and it is important to ensure that it is implemented in a way that supports the growth and development of the agricultural sector.

Alternative taxes, such as regressive taxation and progressive taxation, are also important considerations in tax policy. Regressive taxation is a tax that favors lower-income taxpayers, while progressive taxation is a tax that favors higher-income taxpayers.

In conclusion, tax policy is a critical aspect of government revenue, and it is important to ensure that it is implemented in a way that is fair and equitable. The consolidation of land revenue and additional taxes, as well as the implementation of alternative taxes such as Agricultural Income Tax and tax relief, can help to ensure that the tax system is fair and equitable, and that it supports the growth and development of the economy.
Wide powers have been delegated to the Divisional Commissioners in keeping with Government's policy of decentralisation of power. Under the Community Development and National Extension Service Programme, they will have full powers to accord programme approval (financial estimates and working plans) for the whole project period. They will also sanction individual schemes and authorise expenditure involved therein within the approved programme, without prior reference to the Finance Department, up to Rs. 4 lakhs for irrigation schemes, up to Rs. 1 lakh for reclamation schemes, up to Rs. 1 lakh for rural housing schemes, up to Rs. 1 lakh for housing schemes for project staff and up to Rs. 50,000 for all schemes other than these. They will accord administrative approval for all works, including irrigation, roads, etc. and expenditure involved therein, within the approved programme, up to Rs. 1 lakh for bandhars, up to another Rs. 1 lakh for other irrigation works and up to Rs. 50,000 for all works other than these. They will also sanction loans within the approved programme up to Rs. 25,000 in one item.

In Revenue matters, the Divisional Commissioners will have power to revise the limits of sub-divisions of districts, to sanction reduction of assessment consequent upon reclassification of agricultural lands up to certain limits, to grant remission of miscellaneous land revenue upto Rs. 500 in individual cases in relief of local calamities and to remit judi up to Rs. 100. They will also have power to sanction remission in case of total loss of crop due to local calamities up to Rs. 500.”

Decentralisation

“The District Collector will have general supervision over the work done by the Joint Collector and it follows that it is open to him to call for any file dealt with by the Joint Collector and suitably instruct or guide him.”

The text seems to be discussing the powers of the District Collector and Joint Collector in the context of decentralization and the granting of remissions in local calamities. It highlights the authority and responsibilities assigned to these officials in managing local issues and ensuring that the relief measures are appropriately applied.
I am to state that the work relating to an additional scheme under the Village Road Development Scheme during 1958-59 was recommended to the Government of India. Subsequently the Collector recommended it on priority basis during 1958-59. Hence it was not sanctioned by the Government during 1959-60.

grazing lands along the Coorg-Mysore border. The area in question comprises grazing lands along the Coorg-Mysore border. It includes areas where grazing lands intersect with other lands. The proposed bill seeks to clarify the ambiguity surrounding grazing land usage and ownership. The act would also address the current fragmented ownership of grazing lands.

(Sri P. Narasinga Rao in the Chair)

As the minister for agriculture, I would like to emphasize the importance of grazing lands. These lands are crucial for the livelihood of our rural communities. The proposed amendment to the grazing lands act would provide clearer guidelines for their usage and management. The act would also address the current fragmented ownership of grazing lands.

By passing this amendment, we aim to ensure that our rural communities have access to stable and predictable grazing lands. This is essential for the sustenance of our livestock and the overall agricultural productivity of our region.

Joint Collectors have been functioning under temporary orders. However, the need for permanent administrative frameworks is evident. The amendment would provide a more stable administrative framework for the management of grazing lands.

Board of Revenue and Board Standing Orders

Revenue Minister gave assent to the note on revenue administration. The Revenue Minister also said that revenue administration is the pivot of the whole administration. Revenue Administration should enable the Government to plan and execute schemes. Revenue Administration should be the planning period. Revenue Department should be the pivot of the whole administration. Revenue Inspector should be the pivot of the whole administration.

The note on revenue administration was given assent. The note on revenue administration was given assent.
Land revenue collections

Land revenue collections have increased substantially. The increase in land revenue is due to the following factors:

1. Higher production leading to higher agricultural produce.
2. Better marketing facilities.
3. Improved irrigation facilities.
4. Improved credit facilities to the farmers.
5. Better price realization by the farmers.

These factors have contributed to the increase in land revenue. However, it is important to note that the increase in land revenue should not be at the expense of the farmers. Therefore, measures should be taken to ensure that the farmers are not burdened with excessive taxes.

The government has also taken steps to ensure that the collected land revenue is utilized for the benefit of the farmers. The funds collected are used for various developmental projects such as irrigation, roads, and education.

In conclusion, the increase in land revenue is a positive development. However, it is important to ensure that the funds collected are utilized effectively for the benefit of the farmers. The government should continue to take steps to further increase land revenue and to ensure that the funds collected are utilized efficiently.

The Hon'ble Member said that the sugar industry was an important sector in the state economy. The Hon'ble Minister for Agriculture had mentioned the expansion of the sugar industry. However, the Hon'ble Member expressed concern about the lack of progress in the sugar industry. He noted that the sugar industry was facing several challenges, including low production, high costs, and inadequate infrastructure.

The Hon'ble Member further stated that the government must take urgent steps to address these challenges. He suggested implementing policies that would reduce production costs and increase efficiency. He also recommended investing in infrastructure, such as roads and railroads, to improve transportation and connectivity.

The Hon'ble Member concluded by asking the government to consider the suggestions and take necessary actions to ensure the growth and sustainability of the sugar industry.
