The Bill seeks to control the excessive acquisition of agricultural land by landlords and absentee landlords. It aims to prevent the growth of estate ownership and to ensure fair distribution of land. The Bill specifically targets absentee landlords, who are defined as those who do not reside on the land they own but allow tenants to cultivate it. The measure is intended to prevent land consolidation and to promote fair tenancy practices. The Bill includes provisions to征收土地估价reddy's bill on 4th july, 1960

Co-operative farms and service co-operatives are becoming more and more widespread. In co-operative farming, service co-operatives have already started functioning in different parts of the country. The experiences of cooperative farms and service co-operatives indicate that these co-operatives have not only provided a better marketing and sales outlet but have also helped in the development of agriculture. Co-operative farming, service co-operatives and other co-operative institutions have enabled farmers to improve their living conditions and economic position. The growth of co-operative farming and service co-operatives has provided a new growth for the development of agriculture.

The condition of the farmers has improved in recent years. The government has taken several steps to improve the condition of the farmers. The government has increased the procurement of agricultural produces and provided agricultural credit at low interest rates. The government has also provided electricity, irrigation and other facilities to the farmers.

The government has also taken steps to improve the education and health of the farmers. The government has provided free education to the farmers' children and has set up hospitals and health centres in the co-operative farms. The government has also provided loans to the farmers to start small industries.

The government has also taken steps to improve the economic position of the farmers. The government has increased the minimum support price for agricultural produce and has provided agricultural credit at low interest rates. The government has also provided funds to the farmers for the purchase of agricultural machinery and other inputs.

In conclusion, the government has taken several steps to improve the condition of the farmers. The government has provided assistance to the farmers in the form of agricultural credit, procurement of agricultural produce, electricity, irrigation and other facilities. The government has also provided education and health facilities to the farmers. The government has also provided funds to the farmers for the purchase of agricultural machinery and other inputs. The government has also improved the economic position of the farmers by increasing the minimum support price for agricultural produce and providing agricultural credit at low interest rates.

The depressed classes were included in the legislation of the Andhra Pradesh Government in 1960. The legislation aimed to address the issues faced by the depressed classes. It was designed to provide them with opportunities for economic growth and social progress. The bill aimed to ensure that the depressed classes received adequate land for agriculture and prevented them from being exploited by the landowners.

The bill included provisions that required landowners to provide land to the depressed classes at fair market prices. It also mandated that the landowners had to provide necessary infrastructure, such as water supply and electricity, to enable the depressed classes to cultivate the land. The legislation was a significant step towards social justice and equality in the region.

The bill was implemented with the aim of empowering the depressed classes and ensuring their participation in the economic development of the state. The provisions of the bill were designed to address the specific needs of the depressed classes and provide them with opportunities for social and economic advancement.

"The fixation of a ceiling on land holdings has been waged on the two main grounds, first as a measure for furthering efficient agriculture, and secondly as a means of promoting social justice." (Page 47—Report of the Land Reforms Committee in Andhra by Sri Subba Rao)
A fragmentation of holdings tended to break up the estate into small holdings. The Law of Succession, law of inheritance, and the frequent division of holdings produced a state of affairs where the land had been divided into small holdings. The Fragmentation of holdings led to the loss of productive land, the fall in the cost of production, and the decrease in the value of the holdings.

'A fixation of a low ceiling would therefore inevitably result in agriculture passing into the hands of comparatively unenterprising persons whose resources are fully employed in managing small holdings, and the intelligentsia will tend to forsake agriculture for other and more remunerative vocations.' The single crop area is defined as the area utilized for a single crop annually in the absence of double cropping. The double crop area is defined as the area utilized for a double crop annually. The ratio of the double crop area to the single crop area is referred to as the family holding. The double crop area is further divided into two parts: the single crop area and the family holding. The minimum holding for double crop area is 8 acres, and the minimum holding for single crop area is 18 acres. The minimum holding for the family holding is 27 acres.

The Bill was passed in the Andhra Pradesh Assembly on 13th July, 1960.
On a point of information, Sir. 108 acres of land are being bonded by the farmer in the state of Andhra Pradesh. The classification of A(C) and C(C) is applied as per the law, and the area is declared as 108 acres. It is known as a single crop. However, as per the double crop area, the double crop area is classified as 108 acres. The total area is 216 acres.

Respected Sir, in the light of the facts, the double crop area is not interrupting the single crop area. 108 acres are available for double crop. If 108 acres are double cropped, then the total area will be 216 acres. The single crop area is 108 acres. However, the total area is 216 acres. Therefore, the total area is 216 acres. The double crop area is 108 acres, and the single crop area is 108 acres. The total area is 216 acres.

Sir, Article 19 now ruling oyer which article discussion may be had. Article 19 of the Constitution deals with the power of the state to acquire property for public purposes. The question which arises is whether the acquisition of land under the Andhra Pradesh Ceiling Agricultural Holdings Bill, 1960 is justified under Article 19 of the Constitution.

On a point of information, Sir, an important question (which I have raised earlier) has been referred to the Governor for his consideration, Article 19 of the Constitution now, ruling. In July 1960, the Andhra Pradesh Ceiling on Agricultural Holdings Act was passed by the state legislature. This act aimed to regulate landholdings in the state and establish a fair limit on agricultural holdings. The Planning Commission recommended a ceiling of 3,600 acres for composite Hyderabad. The Law Commission, however, recommended a limit of 6,000 acres for composite Hyderabad. The High Court upheld the 6,000-acre limit. The act was passed and came into force, encouraging the redistribution of land.

Absentee landlords, etc., are dealt with in the Bill. The Bill will provide for the ceiling of land holdings at 16 acres 16 cents. The ceiling will be applicable to the holding of an absentee landlord or a tenant who is in possession of the land without the consent of the owner. The Bill will also provide for the appointment of a committee to investigate cases of land holdings in excess of the ceiling. The committee will have the power to make inquiries and to take such evidence as it deems fit.
The House then adjourned till Half Past Eight of the Clock on Wednesday, the 6th July, 1960
